World Down Syndrome Day

The General Assembly,

Recalling the 2005 World Summit Outcome[1] and the United Nations Millennium Declaration,[2] as well as the outcomes of the major United Nations conferences and summits in the economic, social and related fields,

Recalling also the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities,[3] according to which persons with disabilities should enjoy a full and decent life, in conditions that ensure dignity, promote self-reliance and facilitate the person's active participation in the community and the full enjoyment of all human rights and fundamental freedoms on an equal basis with other persons, and by which States parties undertake to adopt immediate, effective and appropriate measures to raise awareness throughout society regarding persons with disabilities,

Affirming that ensuring and promoting the full realization of all human rights and fundamental freedoms for all persons with disabilities is critical to achieving internationally agreed development goals,

Aware that Down syndrome is a naturally occurring chromosomal arrangement that has always been a part of the human condition, being universally present across racial, gender and socio-economic lines, and affects approximately 1 in 800 births worldwide, causing intellectual disability and associated medical issues,

Deeply concerned by the prevalence and high rate of Down syndrome in persons in all regions of the world and the consequent development challenges in the areas of long-term health care, education, training and intervention programmes undertaken by Governments, non-governmental organizations and the private sector, as well as its considerable impact on families, communities and societies,

Recalling that adequate access to health care, to early intervention programmes and to inclusive education, as well as appropriate research, are vital to the growth and development of the individual,

Recognizing the inherent dignity, worth and valuable contributions of persons with intellectual disabilities as promoters of the well-being and diversity of their communities, and the importance of their individual autonomy and independence, including the freedom to make their own choices,

1. Decides to designate 21 March as World Down Syndrome Day, to be observed every year beginning in 2012;

2. Invites all Member States, relevant organizations of the United Nations system and other international organizations, as well as civil society, including non-governmental organizations and the private sector, to observe World Down Syndrome Day in an appropriate manner, in order to raise public awareness of Down syndrome;

3. Encourages Member States to take measures to raise awareness throughout society, including at the family level, regarding persons with Down syndrome;

4. Requests the Secretary-General to bring the present resolution to the attention of all Member States and United Nations organizations.
